Monday, Nov. 5, at 2, 7 and 8:50
GLORIA SWANSON

"Bluebeard's 8th Wife"

This frisky French love-mystery runs over a year on the Broadway stage before Paramount spent six months in transferring it to the screen. Miss Swanson's gorgeous personality is in its ideal setting in this production.
Comedy—"Mysterious Stranger." ESOP'S FABLES
Matinee, 15c and 25c. Evening, 15c and 35c.

Tuesday, Nov. 6, at 7 and 8:45

"The Prisoner"

STARRING

HERBERT RAWLINSON and EILEEN PERCY

"The Prisoner" is an adaptation of "Castle Cransyow" by George Barr McCutcheon. For genuine thrills, narrow escapes, breath taking excitement this production is in a class by itself. By all means see it.
Comedy—"All Over Twisted." International News.
Prices 15c and 25c.

Wednesday, Nov. 7, at 2:45, 7 and 8:45

RIN-TIN-TIN

The world's greatest Police Dog Hero in

"Where the North Begins"

With a supporting cast of stellar players including Claire Adams and Walter McGrath.
Max-made laws lose their power out "Where the North Begins" and in the land of silver silence, might is often right. These facts are strongly brought out in this pulse-stirring romantic drama of the great open spaces.
Comedy—"Second Childhood." Topics of the Day.
Matinee, 15c and 25c. Evening, 15c and 35c.

Thursday, Nov. 8, at 7 and 8:45

LEATRICE JOY and OWEN MOORE

"THE SILENT PARTNER"

She said he could risk all their hard earned savings in Wall Street providing she could spend as she liked—gowns, jewels, motor—travel as she pleased, and he would do it. He agreed. And that's the unique bargain that forms the basis of the plot of the greatest drama of modern New York film screen this season. A brand new Paramount picture that will please the most discerning cinema patron.
Comedy—"Spooks and Spirits." Pathe Review
Prices, 15c and 25c.

Friday, Nov. 9, at 3:45, 7 and 8:45

WILLIAM RUSSELL

"ALIAS THE NIGHT WIND"

A mystery play that is chuck full of action for everybody. The romance between a lady detective and the criminal who was so elusive that he called him "The Night Wind" is one of the interesting parts of this fast moving story.

Now is the time to put them in the ground.

E. P. CROCKETT, Florist,

Fetter Street, South Paris. Tel. 39-3.

New Sedan

Changes featured in the new Ford Sedan make it a better looking, roomier car.

A higher radiator with a trim screen at its base lends dignity and a closed car. The higher hood and enlarged hood, curving gracefully to the dash give a stylish, modern appearance, and afford additional leg room for occupants of the front seat.

All body fittings—window regulators, door grips, door latch levers, door lock, door handle—are new and improved. The upholstery carries a fine dark line on a soft brown background that does not show easily due to dirt. Silk window curtains are harmonious with the new window shades and enhance the style and add to the comfort of its passengers. See the new Sedan and other new Ford body styles at our showroom.

These cars can be obtained through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

Nuts, Salted and Spiced.

The custom of serving nuts at the end of the Thanksgiving dinner is, I suppose, a survival of the early days when our forefathers brought forth from the loft a portion of their carefully treasured stores of walnuts, butternuts and hickory nuts, which they had so patiently and lovingly gathered from the forest as special treat for such occasions. Then, after the plain but bountiful dinner was over and the table cleared, the family and friends gathered before the glowing open fire and chatted, while the sons of the house cracked the stubborn nuts as best they could on a broad, flat hearthstone, and the children vied with one another in their endeavor to get the precious nut meats out whole. Many changes have come since those rigorous days, but we still cling to nuts as a festive closing for the Thanksgiving dinner. And to-day, served to us ready cracked and salted or spiced, they contribute to the congeniality of the occasion as in the olden days.

Salted nuts, in particular, are an excellent choice to serve with the confections which otherwise are apt to leave a cloying sweetness. Peanuts and almonds are the nuts most commonly selected for salting, although there is no reason for limiting the selection to these varieties, for almost any kind of nuts may be used.

Whether you purchase nuts for salting, shelling, or in the shell, be sure they are fresh and free from insects. Peanuts are difficult to remove from the shells whole and are perhaps best purchased shelled. Peanuts for salting should be of the course, be purchased raw. The shelled nuts should next be blanched. This is easily accomplished. Place the nuts in a pan or bowl, pour boiling water over them and allow them to stand two minutes. Then drain off the water and run cold water through them until they are cool enough to handle. The skins may then be readily slipped off with the fingers. Filberts and pistachios may be used to stand in the boiling water for three to five minutes in order to remove the skins. Then drain them and run cold water through them until they are cool enough to handle. The skins may then be readily slipped off with the fingers.

The next step is the one which requires the most care. Place the nuts in a bowl, and pour over them a mixture of one part of salt to three parts of oil. This mixture should be stirred well. The nuts should then be placed in a bowl and covered with a cloth. They should be left in this position for twenty-four hours. After this time, the nuts should be drained and the oil should be removed. They should then be placed in a bowl and covered with a cloth. They should be left in this position for twenty-four hours.

Modern Medicine vs. Quacks

Scientific Progress is Rapidly Driving the Charlatans out of the Field.

When the doctor gently chides the patient who has wasted vitally valuable time chasing the latest advertisement of a quack, the victim has a "come-back." He—pr, more often, she—retorts that the medical profession is always opposed to new methods of treatment. There is no gaining the fact that ancient and medieval medicine was narrow and ecclesiastical in its attitude. At that time medicine was not a science, but a more or less of superstition and magic. It was, many brilliant minds, but it also had in its ranks a large preponderance of mystics and charlatans.

What we know today as the science of medicine is of recent growth. The application of modern scientific methods to the study of the human body and its processes has produced results as far-reaching in their scope as any achievement in the history of human endeavor. Moreover, by employing the methods of the Twentieth century both to the study of medicine and to the organization of the medical profession, charlatanism and mysticism have become the exception instead of the rule in medicine. The modern medical quack and faddist is but an excrement.

The result of all this has been to raise enormously the standard of the collective judgment of the medical profession. A careful review of modern medicine will show that in not one instance has the quack ever been able to present a case in which his method of treatment has been found to be superior to that of the medical profession. The quack is a man who has failed to meet the exacting requirements demanded by the doctor of today.

Pygmies Average Five Feet
Wherever Found, They Possess Certain Striking Resemblances—Neglect Agriculture.

There are certain popular errors concerning the race of pygmies. Usually travelers have measured the most diminutive specimens, and thus an exaggerated idea of their smallness has been produced.

The average stature of the pygmies that have been measured is about four feet eight inches, but the best authorities in anthropology say that the real average height of the race is five feet. Some are taller than that.

The pygmies have been found in eight or ten different places in Central Africa, but wherever found they possess certain striking resemblances. The plant furnishing the covering for their huts is the same in the widely separated regions visited by Stanley and others, and the shape of the huts, a round hemispherical is the same.

All the pygmies are alike characterized by neglect of agriculture, by the use of poisoned arrows, and by the absence of centralized tribal organization.—Kansas City Times.

Trip Through New Guinea Costly.
New Guinea is a rough country to travel in—absolutely virgin jungle, without even a path other than the narrow paths carved out of the wall of vegetation that covers the greater part of the island. And it is a costly thing to travel through the jungle, for everything you are likely to wear, eat and use in the trip must be carried with you on the backs of your native porters; the jungle is innocent of even the poorest sort of store or shop. Man transport is expensive, and a moderate estimate for the cost of a tour inland by two white men and thirty native carriers is not less than $500 a month. The lonely white man can travel in most countries; in New Guinea he is unknown. Arctic exploration is not the greatest of man's journeys, for the interior of New Guinea—Adventure Magazine.

Found Wrangell Island in 1867.
The first authentic account concerning Wrangell Island, which has been attracting so much international interest, was from Captain Long, master of an American whaling barque, Niles, who in the summer of 1867, on a whaling voyage, named this land Wrangell Island, after Baron Wrangell and two of the headlands he named after one of his crew named Thomas, this man being the first to see the island.

The promontory Hawaii he named after the island, where in winter, in the harbor of Honolulu, the whalers made their rendezvous there to outfit for another season. These names are today on the charts of Wrangell Island.

Aug. 12, 1881, Capt. Olinia Cooper, commanding the United States revenue steamer, Albatross, landed on the island, and found it to be the same as the possession of Wrangell land in the name of the United States of America.

Form of Punishment in 1618.
The custom of punishing a culprit by forcing him to "run the gauntlet" is said to have originated in the Thirteenth Century (1018-48), and to have been adopted by European armies as a mode of punishment. The culprit, stripped to the waist, was obliged to run repeatedly between two lines of soldiers facing each other. Each soldier struck at him with a short stick or switch.

The word "gauntlet," as here used, that of an iron glove—is simply a corruption of the ancient word, derived from the Swedish gatlapp, meaning "running down a lane." Some etymologists, however, derive the word from the German gassen-lappen, which means "running the lane," and others from the Dutch gangloppen, having the same meaning.

Force of Habit.
Guy—Waters has an odd case of absentmindedness.
Guy—Oh—
Guy—Yes, he's just back from a motor boat cruise and the other night he set down in the bath and bled it out until the whole floor was flooded.—New York Sun and Globe.

An Oversight.
"My doctor put me on a rigid diet, but he said I could eat all the spinach I wanted."
"The darned fool evidently didn't know that I like spinach."—Wayside Tales.

Small Courtesies Count.
Hall—Yes, small courtesies of life! For smooth do we make the road of it, like grace and beauty, which boget inclinations to love at first sight. It is ye that open the doors and let the strangers in.—Sterne.

Our Own Time.
A genuine love of your own time is the recognition, in which you meet in it, of those best moments which crave to be made accessible to the widest remotest of ages following.—John Ruskin.
